

Volunteerism is an important component of ERLA. We are proud to be part of these volunteer design teams that serve communities in Connecticut.

Catherine Violet Hubbard Animal Sanctuary, Newtown, CT

An animal sanctuary is planned in memory of Catherine Violet Hubbard of Newtown, Connecticut: "This sanctuary will be a place of healing; a place where animals' lives are saved, a place to launch humane education programs – a place where all creatures, great and small, are rescued, respected and loved." <http://cvhfoundation.org/about/cvh-animal-sanctuary/>

Fredrick Law Olmsted Legacy Trail, CT

This Connecticut native is referred to as the father of landscape architecture. As a service to the Connecticut Chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects, we are helping to design and develop a website that will chronicle his work. It will ultimately be an addition to the Connecticut Department of Tourism- things to see and do in Connecticut. Coming soon.....www.olmstedlegacytrail.com

Roger Sherman Baldwin Park, Greenwich, CT

This significant site located in the heart of the Greenwich central business district was originally designed by The Olmstead brothers in 1928. Though the plans were never fully realized, the park serves as a hub of activity for the town. This master plan was created as a donation to Greenwich Green and Clean, www.greenwichgreenandclean.org, who along with the Town's Parks and Recreation Department, will implement this plan in phases over the coming years. It is the first park in the Town of Greenwich to have an actual master plan.

Ryan Park, South Norwalk, CT

ERLA is excited to be part of the team for the development of this park as a significant part of a redevelopment area effort in South Norwalk.
